

EFMP Families,

When you transfer to a new duty station, everyone in your family has to make adjustments. Meeting new friends, changing schools and jobs, and getting familiar with new surroundings - this can be exciting and stressful at the same time. There are added challenges when someone in the family needs special educational or medical services.

My name is Glenn Romano; I am the Exceptional Family Member Program Family Support (EFMP-FS) Coordinator for Aviano Air Base. My role as the EFMP-FS Coordinator is to assist your family in finding resources and providing community support services that include:

- Information and referral before, during and after PCS. Providing aid to on base, base local, state and federal services.
- Community awareness and education on the EFMP.
- Family events, support groups and committee advocacy.

I am available at the Airman and Family Readiness Center next to the post office at flightline. Please feel free to contact me at 632-5407 or email me at glenn.romano@aviano.af.mil

I know the system.....I can help
